

A new Prep Year for all Queenslanders

Schooling is changing in Queensland. The introduction of a full-time, non-compulsory Preparatory Year in 2007 and an increase in the starting age for Year 1 from 2008 will change the face of early education in Queensland.

These changes are part of broader reforms to education and training designed to give every young Queenslander the skills, knowledge and confidence to achieve their full potential.

Throughout the state, there are a number of schools already offering a Prep class as part of the phase-in process.

Internal and external evaluation has shown children attending these classes are developing positive attitudes to learning, and skills and knowledge through active, hands-on learning and problem solving.

The Prep Year is an integral part of the State Government's commitment to education and training. It will ensure children make a smoother transition to Year 1 and set the foundation for lifelong learning.

Anna Bligh MP
Minister for Education and Minister for the Arts

- drawing and painting to encourage oral language, reading and writing skills
- writing stories and copying signs as part of their play, constructions and art
- playing and investigating independently, in pairs, small groups and as a whole class
- actively making choices about what and how they learn
- investigating and learning how to inquire about their interests
- planning collaboratively with the teacher using a plan-do-reflect model
- participating in music and language experiences.

These learning experiences will help children to:

- understand and use language to group, sort and describe objects and to communicate ideas, feelings and needs
- develop early literacy and numeracy skills
- become independent thinkers and problem solvers
- learn how to cooperate with others
- develop physical coordination skills
- listen, respond to and give directions
- become confident at taking risks in their learning
- make good choices.

The children

Children will need to be five by 30 June in the year they enrol in Prep. Target class size is 25 children. Where there are not enough children to form a separate class, children may be in a composite or multi-age class.

Prep will be available at all state primary schools to all children of eligible age and there will be no waiting list. It is anticipated that Prep will also be available at all non-state schools.

The teachers

Many of our current Preschool and early childhood teachers will teach Prep. In addition, the State Government will employ more than 100 new teachers, with first preference being given to early childhood teachers.

The classroom

The Government has allocated up to $350 million to refurbish existing classrooms and build new classrooms where required in state and non-state schools.

The facilities and resources that support the curriculum will make the Prep classroom a fun and exciting place for children to learn.

Prep will become the first year in the Early Phase of Learning, which spans Prep to Year 3. Children attending Prep will have access to school resources and might participate in school activities such as sport and music. Being part of school life on a full-time basis provides a smoother transition to Year 1.

What will Prep be like?

Prep is a specially designed educational program for schools offered on a full-time, non-compulsory basis.

The curriculum

The Early Years Curriculum Guidelines are designed to better prepare children for school. The Prep curriculum is based on active learning, which includes inquiry, investigation and play. In Prep, children will be:

- constructing using blocks, collage and manipulative equipment to develop early mathematical concepts and skills
- initiating and participating in dramatic play to build an understanding of the world around them

Who can go to Prep?

Birth date:	Eligible for Prep Year in:	Eligible for Year 1 in:
Child born 1 Jan 2001 to 31 Dec 2001	Eligible for Preschool in 2006	2007
Child born 1 Jan 2002 to 30 June 2002	2007	2008
Child born 1 July 2002 to 30 June 2003	2008	2009
Child born 1 July 2003 to 30 June 2004	2009	2010
Child born 1 July 2004 to 30 June 2005	2010	2011

In 2007

Children born between 1 January 2002 and 30 June 2002 are eligible to attend Prep in 2007.

Many children born in 2001 will have attended preschool or child care in 2006. Children born in 2001 are expected to enrol in Year 1 in 2007.

In 2008

Children born between 1 July 2002 and 30 June 2003 are eligible to attend Prep in 2008. This will be the first full intake of Prep students.

From 2008, children will need to be six by 30 June the year they enrol in Year 1.

What happens to Preschool?

Preschool will not be available in state schools after 2006. Until this time the current age requirements for Preschool will stay the same — that is, children need to be five by 31 December in the year they start Preschool. Children born in 2001 will be the last group to attend state Preschools.

What about other services?

As Prep is not compulsory, some parents may choose to send their children to an alternative early childhood care and education service. It is Government policy that the preparatory year is part of primary schooling and will be provided through state schools and accredited non-state schools.

Parents considering accessing a pre-Prep service for their child are advised to consider the full range of early education and care options available to them and place their child's name on waiting lists if necessary.

The Department of Communities offers a free statewide Child Care Information Service that provides up-to-date information regarding centre based and home based child care services including kindergartens, child care centres, family day care schemes and school aged care services.

The Child Care Information Service can provide details of child care services and kindergartens in your area over the telephone, by email, fax or through the post.

Contact details for the Child Care Information Service are listed at the end of this brochure.

Alternatively, parents may choose to use Communities' web based map to identify conveniently located services:
